Let me in
The outcast cries.
Let me in
Before I die!
Maybe I am
A different color,
Race, and creed.
Teach me.
Tell me.
Call me brother.

Unintentionally
You unintentionally ask of me to give you my friendship,
Instead I try to give my heart

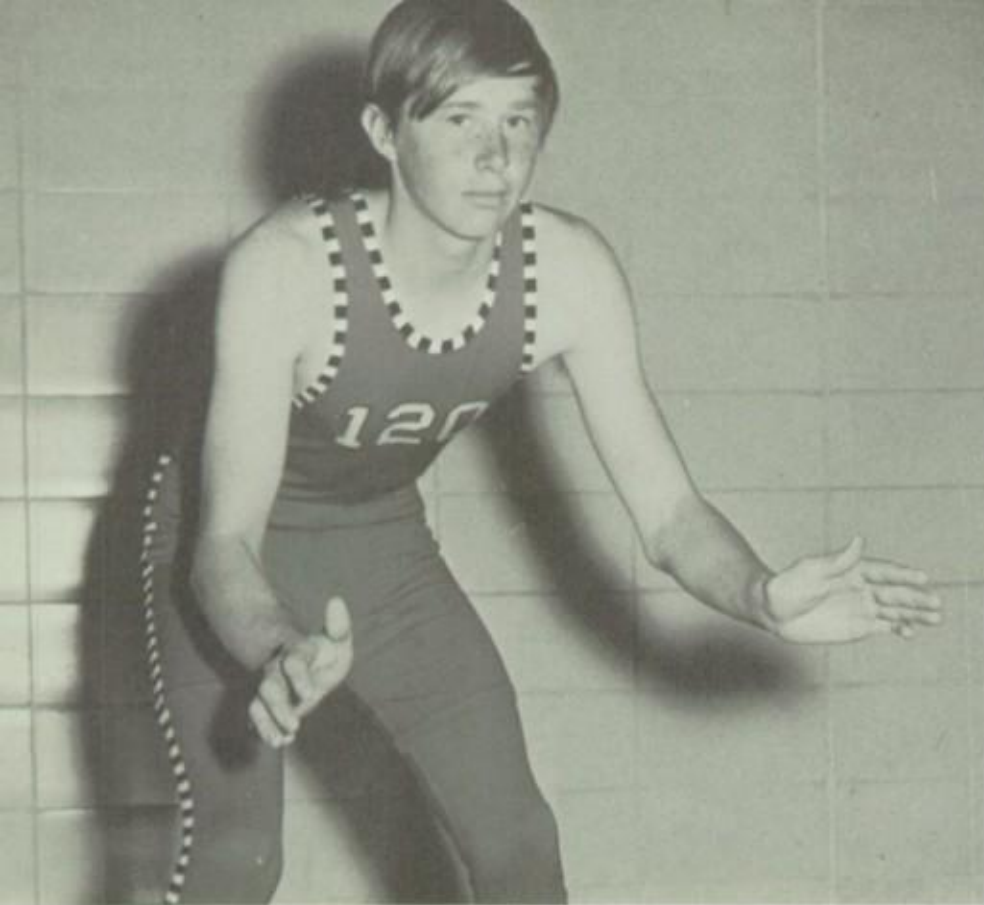

You ask of me to give advice
Instead I try to give my mind.

You ask of me to give you love,
Instead I try to give my soul.

I only unintentionally ask one thing.
Remember me.

JANITORS AND COOKS

How do you explain the blue sky
to a blind man,

It's endlessness, beautiful movement

As so, how do you explain loneliness to the ultimately accepted,

Its trials, strong moments its deeply rooted sadness

To touch them is to touch a star

It would be so great-rewarding, but impossible.

Lonesomeness is cured by love, but are you willing, to give of yourself your greatest possession.

Are you willing to stop to pick up a piece of broken glass - when your feet are well protected.

The reward is that of the most potential,

Happiness with yourself is to see the happiness of another

How Great that would be.
